To purchase a bottle and a mouthguard, you must complete the Nabbed from The Nuka-World quest line. Upon completion, they will occasionally visit and walk around your Sanctuary. Choosing them when they dance will reward you with caps or Nuka Cola quantum. Note: This is only to be used to report spam, advertising and problematic (harassment, wrestling, or rude) messages. In this guide I will teach you what a bottle of Cappy do... As you get them you should see the quest (once the quest is a magazine thing you can do). At this point you have to start the quest and go through all the sections of it and the one you finish it you have to get some dialogue with them. Something like this: At this point they say they will show up to spread happiness or whatever. And with that we move on to what they really are... That they make bottles and Cappy will enter your vault from time to time when they are in your vault your residents' happiness will increase. So it will increase performance because of the bonus of happiness, but then there is the main attraction: They wander around the vault and sometimes start dancing and there is music to play around them, at which point you want to click on them and you will be given a bonus. This will only happen when you're browsing the store, not when you're offline. In addition, crafting goes faster. A bottle bottle will give you either Nuka Cola when pressed or caps. I don't know the exact amount, but it's not much. As for the chances of getting Nuka Cola against the speed caps, I don't know the exact ratio, but chances are most of the time you get caps. How to spot: You'll know that he's ready to be pressed because you'll hear banjo music and he'll start doing some weird wiggly wave thing with his hands. I try not to doubt it. The bottle does its job on average 2-3 times per visit, and does not stay to dance for very long. So I personally always try to prioritize getting to it whenever possible. Cappy Cappy dances much more often than a bottle and always drops caps. You can determine when he will be ready because he will do some sort of moon dance back and forth and there will be trumpet plays ...? If you can find a way to describe it better, please let me know. What do they do for your storage when they're there? What are the conditions for them to appear or disappear? Page 2 9 comments After graduating from The Refreshing Rescue quest, Bottle and Cappy began visiting my Sanctuary. What are their consequences, other than increasing happiness? And how does happiness increase? Nuka-World/Fallout Shelter character Nuka-Cola CorporationBottle Nuka-WorldFallout Shelter Cappy in Fallout Shelter Cappy is one of two mascots for The Nuka-Cola Corporation at their amusement park, Nuka-World, in 2077. The contents of the BackgroundEdit Cappy show, the Nuka-Cola bottle cola, were used in goals and was presented guide to park safety rules and on postcards with your friend Bottle. He lived in Cappie's treehouse. Cappie (along with Bottle) was kidnapped by a raider gang in the quest series Kidnapped from Nuka World in Fallout Shelter. GameplayEdit Fallout ShelterEdit After releasing it and the bottle from the Raiders, the pair will appear in your vault from time to time and will appear immediately for the first time. They provide a temporary increase of 20% in happiness for each resident in the vault, no matter what room bottle and Cappie are in. After they leave, the happiness of the resident returns to the previous level. This can greatly help those who have many residents with low happiness. Hitting either of the mascots when they stop and dance will give some caps, with the bottle sometimes giving way to some Nuka-Cola quantum. The appearance ofEdit Cappie appears in Fallout 4 Nuka-World and Fallout Shelter. The Cappie statue appears in Fallout 76. GalleryEdit VideosEdit Fallout 4 Nuka-World Trailer feat.
